BISHOP LAWRENCE.

Something About the Successor of the Famous Phillips Brooks.
Rev. William T. Lawrence, S. T. D., the successor of Phillips Brooks as bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, has been dean of the theological school of his church at Cambridge for the past four years and a professor in the same institution for ten years. He is of one of the best families of Massachusetts, and himself a native of the state. His grandfather was one of the founders of the city of Lawrence, and the city was named in his honor. It was at Grace church in Lawrence that the bishop-elect officiated as rector for several years after his graduation from the Cambridge theological school, and there was sincere sorrow among his congregation when he resigned to take the post of vice dean and professor of homiletics and pastoral care at his alma mater. He became dean in 1889 on the death of Dean Gray, retaining his professorship.

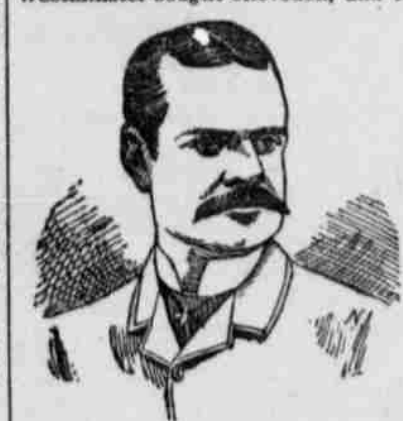

REV. WILLIAM LAWRENCE, S. T. D.

The school has prospered under his care, and largely because of his endeavor. Dean Lawrence is about forty-three years of age and is one of a family of seven brothers and sisters. He graduated at Harvard in the famous class of 1871 and afterward presented his theological studies at the Episcopal schools at Andover and Philadelphia, taking his last year at Cambridge in 1876. He married a granddaughter of Bishop Parker, and they have three daughters and one son. The family lives at the deanery of the theological school and has a summer house at Bar Harbor.

The election of Dean Lawrence is essentially a victory for the broad churchmen, and it is expected that he will conduct the affairs of his diocese on the lines laid down by the late Bishop Brooks during his short but brilliant episcopate. There was considerable discussion at the convention about the inefficiency of the bishop's salary, which is not a stated amount, but the income, whatever it may be, of the episcopal fund, which amounts to nearly $140,000. The income last year made their "Sabbath" vigorous endeavors will be made to increase the fund.

MILLIONAIRE ASTOR.

An English Opinion of One of Gotham's Richest Men.
Mr. Astor, the great American millionaire, by coming to live amongst us, has paid the Old Country the very greatest compliment that an American can pay to the home of his forefathers, says London Black and White. Mr. Astor is a good deal more than a mere millionaire. He is an educated gentleman with many refined tastes, and the author of historical novels that have made their mark. He has paid a good, but not an extravagant, price for a beautiful and historical house and estate that are better known to Londoners, perhaps, than any of the great homes of rural England. It was about twenty-five years ago that the duke of Westminster bought Cliveden, and it is said that his grace has parted with it because the jerry builders had marked the land the opposite bank of the river for their own. Mr. Astor bought the land and prevented this desecration. It is something after all to possess fifty millions sterling! Mr. Astor, not content with his well-managed Pall Mall Magazine, is starting a Pall Mall Gazette, which is likely to succeed, for it has absolutely nothing to contend against at its own price except the three or four great American illustrated magazines, and they should not be very hard to beat in letterpress or in art, for their art work is often photographic in its origin, and their literature has almost always been, from the European point of view, somewhat provincial and amateurish.

Here's Jeffersonian Simplicity.

The most frugal and matter-of-fact government of Europe is probably that of Bulgaria, which, when the national legislature does not happen to be in session, is in the habit of hiring out the parliamentary chamber for theatrical entertainments. The national representatives are mostly farmers in a small way, and they are very regular in their attendance, since if they are not on hand to answer the roll-call they forfeit their daily stipend of 50 cents.

Benefits vs. Bachelors.

It is stated that among every 1,000 bachelors there are thirty-eight orphans; among married men the ratio is only eighteen per 1,000.

DON'T FORGET MOTHERS.

Don't neglect the baby; the little fellow has the first right to your attention.

Don't lay the child down with his ears bent away from his head; the result will be a deformity.

Don't wake the baby to exhibit the tints of his eyes to admiring friends; sleep is his most unquestionable right.

Don't stare the baby by allowing a strong light to shine directly into them, especially when he first wakes.

ILLINOIS AT THE FAIR.

The Largest State Exhibit at Jackson Park.

Nearly One Million Spent by the People of Illinois—Attractive Displays Made by the Woman's Board—Rare Curios and Works of Art.

(Special World's Fair Letter.)

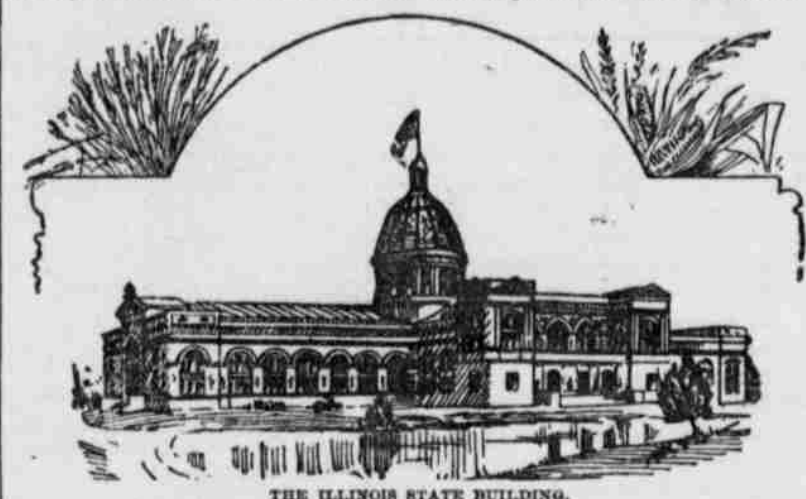

Illinois has become the host of the world and her building at Jackson park is a masterpiece of architecture and responsibility. To no nation was ever permitted such an honor, and when guests reach the border of state lines they feel a welcome to this grand commonwealth.

The legislature of the state appropriated $800,000 for the erection of a building and for the display of the industry and talents of the people. Two hundred and thirty thousand dollars of that sum has been used for the erection of the building which has one of the most prominent sites in the park. The building is modeled after the state house, and has the form of a Greek Dohn; Greek Temple, by Miss A. E. Jones; Dancers, by Miss M. W. Means; Oleander, by Miss D. Garow; Joy, by Miss Gregory, and Poetry, by Miss Means.

All the work in the room was designed and executed by women. A gray green silk tapestry with gold figure is hung on the walls.

An upholstered chair and carved desk are the gift of the carving club of Elgin; a clock was furnished by Miss Walker, of Macomb; an inlaid mahogany table by the women of Washington county; a mantle by Mrs. Carrel, of Jacksonville. The clock over the mantle is given by Miss Peck, of Chicago. A case of decorated china, and many other beautiful works of women, aid in making this a perfect tower. The group of staff statuary in the woman's section has been admired by many artists. The seven subjects are Art, Faith, Charity, Learning, Justice, Maternity and status of Illinois welcoming the nation. The last was the work of Miss Julia Bracken, and has had an eventful history. The clay was destroyed in the winter by frost and had to be remod-cross. The dome is 72 feet in diameter and 225 feet in height. Its length is 450 feet and width 156 feet. Facing south the building commands a view of that section of the ground containing the Woman's Horticulture, Transportation, Mines and Mining, Electrical, and Manufactures buildings, while across the wooded island it catches a glimpse of the glided dome of the Administration building, a section of the Agricultural, Government and Fisheries buildings.

Across the lagoon on the north is the Fine Arts building, and off to the east rise the roofs, turrets and domes of the principal foreign buildings. The entrances have all been ornamented with blooming plants in rockeries, and surrounded by rustic benches and chairs. The main entrance is on the south, and leads directly to the rotunda of the building, where has been built an enormous fountain made of porous rock, through which a supply of water pours. Twelve hundred gallons of filtered water are furnished every twenty-four hours. Within a few feet of the fountain, at the northeast corner of the west wing, has been built a cascade of the porous rock, over which the water streams into a pool below which is filled with every species of fish found in Illinois waters. Over the waterfall is a rustic bridge, and around the edges of rock are growing mosses, lichens and lilies. Several beautiful reception-rooms have been decorated and furnished for the use of guests and

ed. After the fair it is to be carved in marble. The woman's department contains a fine exhibit of every line of woman's work. Ceramic decorations, lace making, embroidery, wood carving, etching, oil painting and leather embossing are all illustrated by beautiful displays. Factory work of every variety in which women are employed is represented by collections of photographs, taken with the women at work. A large room at the east end of the building has been assigned to the kindergarten department in which demonstration lessons will be given each day.

Near the art reception room is a collection of colonial relics made by Miss Callahan, of the Illinois woman's board. In this exhibit is an old-fashioned canopy bedstead, an old mahogany table and a mantle from the room in which a banquet was given Lafayette April 24, 1825. The general reception rooms are on the main floor in the west section of the building. One room is finished in blue and furnished with Moquette carpet and upholstered furniture to blend in color. On the east wall hangs an exquisite portrait of John A. Logan on tapestry, entitled "The Rally at Atlanta." On the west of the reception room is a lounge room finished in terra cotta and upholstered furniture. Across the rotunda from the reception rooms is Memorial hall, fireproof, in which is exhibited the battlefields and other war relics of the soldiery of Illinois. There state officials. The first rooms to the right of the south lagoon are known as the governor's reception room and governor's chamber. The first is frescoed in old rose pink tints and the second in pale green.

The wood work in both rooms was carved by Mr. Barile, only six tools being used and all hand work. A mantle, cabinet clock, sofa and chairs were made from rails split on his farm which is near Carthage, Ill.

A Wilton carpet in colors blending with the walls covers the floor. Across the hall from the governor's suite is one of the most beautiful reception rooms to be found on the exposition grounds.

The designing and decorating was done by Miss Ida J. Burgess, an artist of Chicago, assisted by several women artists from different sections of the state.

The ceiling of the room is plastered done in relief and the edge is picked out with gold. The frieze is valued at $5,000 and consists of separate panels executed by different artists, but the entire tone of color is taken from the morning glory. The subjects of each panel are: Youth and Learning, by Ida J. Burgess; Music, by Mrs. M. E. Lusk; Tragedy, Tradition and Comedy, by Adele Fay; Instruction, by Alice G. Kellogg; Industrial Art, by Pauline are two reception halls on either side of the rotunda, each 100 feet square, traversed by galleries 16 feet wide extending east and west.

The north half of the building is equally divided between state grain inspectors, forestry and fish commission; the south half between the horticultural, archaeological and geological survey departments. On the wall of the west end of the agricultural exhibit is a picture of a model farm of Illinois in which is placed 100 varieties of grain. The picture is 32 feet and was made by twelve Illinois women. The picture was constructed in sections and would have required 450 days for one person to execute the work. The entire cost was $1,000. In this department are booths and pagodas made of grain and grasses containing samples of the seeds and statistics worked into the grains showing the annual harvest in bushels. In their respective departments are timber exhibits of woods, native and cultivated. The fruits and flowers make a brilliant display in the south section of the building.

All the departments of the University of Illinois have a working exhibit with the annual harvest to illustrate the exhibit. The growth of chemistry, art, mechanical and electrical engineering, mining and civil engineering, and zoology are fully explained.
